

An apparatus and method for conducting electrophoresis, includes a cassette, gel, and electrolyte solution in contact with the gel. The electrolyte solution has high capacity and low conductivity properties, so that low volumes of electrolyte solution can be used.